NEW YEAR OFF TO A RUNNING START

Up to 1,000 runners will be up bright and early New Year's Day to compete in the seventh annual Rio Resolution Run. This year's race proceeds will benefit The Suicide Prevention and Crisis Center. The 6.2-mile main event and the 3-mile Family Fun Run both begin at 9 a.m. at Rio Grill Restaurant in the Crossroads and end at Larson Field, just east of Carmel Mission Basilica. Above, runners in the 1996 race cross Highway 1 at Rio Road. Race-day registration will be available.

New design guidelines a top priority for 1997

■ Decision on Sunset Theater plan also expected

By KRISTI BELCAMINO

AS CARMEL enters into the new year and begins its work plan for 1997, it may make decisions that will affect the village in the 21st century.

A big part of what makes Carmel the internationally renowned city that it is has to do with the way its citizens adhere to strict aesthetic standards in both the residential and commercial sectors.

The Pine Cone asked Carmel Mayor Ken White what the city had on its platter for 1997. He said preservation of village character was a big priority. What follows are some of the issues the city will tackle this next year.

■ Advance planning

White said the council intends to devote more time to advance planning during 1997.

The city has hired a consultant for design review in the residential district, in its attempt to prevent "cookie cutter" designs as the aging housing stock undergoes a predicted record number of remodels. The availability of new water sources, however, will be a prerequisite for such residential redevelopment.

A citizen's committee will be established to work with the consultant in developing residential design standards.

With some changes, Rancho San Carlos project revived

By KENDALL KLYM

WITH A couple of deletions, developers of the presumed dead Rancho San Carlos proposed development intend to move forward with key elements of the controversial project.

With the omission of the proposed 150-room hotel and a general store, the RSC partnership plans to construct homes and a golf course on 2,000 acres of a 20,000-acre tract of land immediately south of Carmel Valley — a project thought to be put to rest with the defeat of Measure M in the November elections.

KBOQ in process of reinventing itself

■ Radio station's effort to grab the younger market share may professionalize local operation, but some dread the prospect of more classical lite fare

By LYN BRONSON
Pine Cone music correspondent

AS RUMORS and media reports about KBOQ, 95.5-FM, changing its format have alarmed and confused listeners, the nature of the changes at the Monterey-based classical music station may not have been depicted accurately.

That is the message being presented by co-owners Stoddard Johnston and Sherrie McCullough, who describe the new arrangement as trading program "sources," not formats. However the changes are labeled, Johnston and McCullough hope both to trim the costs of running the station and to attract a new set of younger listeners.

Whether this undertaking will succeed remains to be seen. Meanwhile, there is reason to believe all listeners — young and old, devoted and periodic — should expect bigger helpings of Strauss waltzes and fewer symphonies by Mahler and Bruckner.

In the worst case, the new programming may fail to attract younger people and further disappoint KBOQ's current listening audience. The best case promises that there will be a sharper, more professional product made possible by a new 24-hour-a-day live syndicated format (i.e., source) called SW Networks' Classic FM.

But there is one thing everybody agrees on: The Peninsula is fortunate to continue to have a classical music station — whatever its programming.

Format or source?

Since being acquired by McCullough and Johnston in 1993, "KBach" has used KDRC syndication as its major programming source.

This service has proved adequate and reliable, although many listeners may have been aware that announcers were reading cue cards containing the composers' names and the dates when the works were written. To some ears, there has been a distinctly "canned" quality about the service.

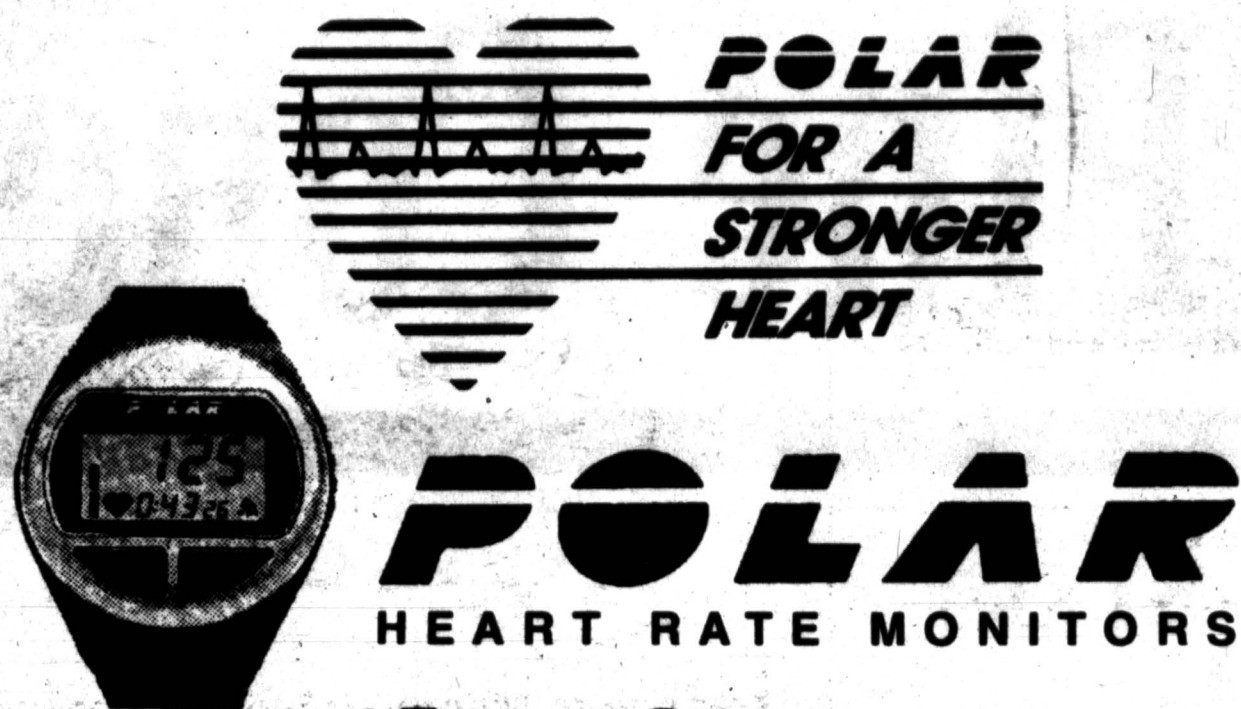

But during the past year, Johnston and McCullough have become aware of a new source, Sony-Warner's SW Networks, which features live announcers, good on-air talent and other attractive features.

Starting in the second week of January, this new programming will be beamed by satellite to the station's disk in Monterey. KBOQ can use as much of this all-day, all-

52 reasons we can't help loving this area

AS 1996 fades into the wings and a frisky 1997 bounds onto center stage, it seems a perfect time to celebrate some of the things we love about the incomparable Monterey Peninsula.

Portions of the media have abandoned it and are clumsily courting Salinas (good grief) in its place — which is like dropping Cindy Crawford to pursue Roseanne.

BUT that tells us more about the free-fall decline of those media than it does about the Peninsula.

In honor of the brand-new year, here is a full deck (52) of reasons why we treasure this beloved stretch of real estate every day of the year. Not in any particular order of importance, then:

1- POINT Lobos, perhaps Mother Earth's finest hour.

2- Monterey's picture-postcard marina where you can escape to the seven seas of the world without ever leaving the dock.

3- Leon Panetta.

4- The Rack of Lamb with Pinot Noir Sauce at Pandango in Pacific Grove.

5- Robert Louis Stevenson School in Pebble Beach, the kind of educational ambiance you hope for your own kids.

6- Monterey Bay Aquarium, one of the world's finest ever-changing exhibitions of the fascinating creatures that ply the mysterious briny.

7- THE FIERY winter sunsets at Carmel Beach.

8- Exceptional mayors like Ken White, Dan Albert and Sandy Koffman.

9- Doris Day, a national treasure.

10- The Big Sur Marathon — not just a long run, but a sightseeing trip.

11- The Sand Dabs at Cafe Fina on the wharf.

12- Dennis the Menace Park in Monterey.

13- THE MARVELOUSLY massive fireplace in the lobby of The Inn at Spanish Bay — its flames voraciously snapping, crackling and popping as they chew away at jumbo logs on a rainy day in Pebble.

14- The incredible cookery of Robert Kincaid at his bistro in the Crossroads.

15- Ed Haber. Icon.

16- Ocean Avenue in Carmel during the holiday season.

17- The astonishing panoramic view from Ferrante's restaurant atop the Marriott Hotel in Monterey.

18- THE HOT DOG wagon in front of Costco in Sand City. (Are the dogs really that good or does it just seem like it?)

19- The Rio Resolution Run on New Year's morning, a splendid way to make sure you don't overdo on New Year's Eve.

20- The singing sheriff, Pat Du Val.

21- The romantic, darkish bar at La Playa Hotel in Carmel.

22- The outstanding salad bar at Monterey's Bay Park Hotel.

23- THE AMBROSIAL Capellini Campagnola at Sole Mio in Carmel Valley Village.

24- The awe-inspiring stained glass windows in St. Mary's by-the-Sea Episcopal Church in Pacific Grove.

25- Judge Harkjoon Paik. A man of courage, a giant of law.

26- Sumptuous Sunday brunches at Pacific's Edge in the Highlands Inn. Pricey, sure — but mother, the food!

27- The unique John Gardiner Tennis Ranch in Carmel Valley, where aces and drop-shots are applauded almost as often as the meals.

28- THE MONTEREY WHARF — A glass of wine, a loaf of sourdough, a freshly cracked Dungeness

Sheriff's Log

Unauthorized hot-tubbing and other wrongdoing

HERE'S A look at the more significant items of activity logged by the Monterey County Sheriff's Department from Saturday, Dec. 21 through Wednesday, Dec. 25.

"Carmel" entries do not include calls from within the city limits of Carmel-by-the-Sea, which is under the jurisdiction of the Carmel Police Department.

SATURDAY, DEC. 21

Carmel Valley: A resort manager reported that during the night the facility's pool cover had been partially removed and its hot tub had been used.

Carmel Valley: Deputies advised a man to stay off another man's property after he had been seen there on more than one occasion.

Carmel: A woman reported that her house received damage during the course of an argument she had with her son.

Pebble Beach: Deputies conducting a welfare check at a residence discovered that some of the rooms were littered with trash, animal feces and urine. The animal inhabitants of the residence were found to be in good condition.

SUNDAY, DEC. 22

Carmel Valley: Deputies responded to a parking problem involving three apartment tenants.

Carmel: A man was placed under citizen's arrest for trespassing after he had been previously warned by a deputy not to return to an apartment subdivision.

Carmel: A woman reported that her purse had been stolen out of her shopping cart. The purse, minus $30, was later found and reunited with its owner.

MONDAY, DEC. 23

Carmel Valley: A man reported finding a hack saw, a tool box and an "art object" (a plaster cast of a foot wearing a sandal) hidden underneath the Boronda Road bridge. The man believed that the items might have been stolen.

Carmel Valley: A 36-year-old woman reported being "bothered" by a 24-year-old man while she was shopping at a grocery store. Deputies contacted the man and told him that the woman did not wish to speak to him.

TUESDAY, DEC. 24

Carmel: After a woman reported that her 16-year-old son and his 15-year-old friend were overdue, deputies located the pair, admonished them and then escorted them home.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 25

Big Sur: After locating a motorist from San Luis Obispo whose vehicle was stuck in mud off of a blind berm on South Coast Ridge Road, deputies "easily" pulled the vehicle to solid ground.

Carmel Valley: A 49-year-old woman reported being afraid after her 48-year-old ex-husband, who has a history of violence, showed up at her residence. The man left before deputies arrived.

Pebble Beach: A 47-year-old woman reported that her ex-husband refused to bring her children back from their holiday visit. Deputies determined that the visitation plan was vague and that the woman did not possess the proper paperwork in order to enforce it.

The Monterey County Sheriff's Log appears weekly in The Pine Cone.

Toward the end of 1997, council will also begin talking about plans to implement design standards in the commercial district, said White.

"We have no established criteria," he said. "The council and I are concerned with how the commercial look is changing and we don't like it."

In addition, White said the council will tackle commercial-use standards on Ocean Avenue. An unwanted increase in formula stores and sales of T-shirts are of great concern to the council, said White.

"A major, major, major plan is creating an ordinance to control the sale of T-shirts," said White. "We think when the front windows (on Ocean Avenue) are heavily displayed with T-shirts, it changes the whole look of downtown. We would rather have distinctive shops — you can buy T-shirts anywhere in the world — we'd rather have shops with unique merchandise. We have a lot (of unique stores) now that really enhance the city."

■ Sunset Center

White anticipates a decision, possibly in February, regarding the renovation of the theater complex at Sunset Center. Council has six proposals to consider.

"This has a lot to do with the future of Carmel-by-the-Sea," said White, noting the city bought the theater nearly 28 years ago and is finally moving forward with it.

"It's a huge priority with me personally," he said. "This council is finally coming to grips that something needs to be done."

White said after council decides on the fate of the theater complex, phase two can begin with fundraising through the private, nonprofit organization, Sunset Center for the Arts.

■ Deferred maintenance

The city for years has been millions of dollars behind on its public works obligation. White hopes that with the improved economy, more money can be invested in deferred maintenance.

"Our income is up and improving so we can start putting money into our buildings and our streets," said White, noting it has been nearly five years since the city has been able to do this.

■ City staff and equipment

Carmel plans to readvertise for a code enforcement officer — the last one quit on his first day.

"The council has made a strong statement in support of a good enforcement officer for the commercial district," said White.

And if funding allows, the city will look at purchasing a new fire truck and possibly hiring a new policeman to patrol downtown on foot, said White.

■ Beach master plan

Developing a beach master plan will be a council priority in 1997, said White.

"It will tell us what we can and can't do on the beach," said White. "We'll take a real good look at what we can do to preserve that wonderful, priceless piece of real estate."

A master plan will look at issues such as whether there should be a curfew on the beach, what types of plants should be allowed and regulations for bonfires.

White said a beach master plan is important because Carmel has not yet finished its Local Coastal Plan and this will be a step towards that.

■ From A to Z

Within the next few months residents will receive a booklet in the mail called the "A to Z" book, said White, which will answer common questions about Carmel and why it is the way it is. For instance, it will explain why there are no sidewalks in residential areas, no street lights and no house numbers.

■ Ambulance

After a struggle to retain ambulance service in Carmel, it looks as though it is here to stay. White hopes to finalize that decision.

"We will solidify the fact that our ambulance is going to stay in the City of Carmel," said White. "We are really working on that and taking a long look at funding for keeping Carmel Ambulance in the Carmel Fire Department."

Contest begs question: What happened to 'beauty is as beauty does?'

By KRISTI BELCAMINO

IF YOU LOOK good in a leotard, interview well and have an extra 600 or so bucks sitting around, you, too, could be the next Mrs. California or Mrs. Carmel — or both.

OK, so it's not that easy; you must also be at least 24, married for at least two years and a resident of California for at least six months to qualify.

And you must have your husband's permission — or at least his signature.

When I saw this on the application, I had a nightmarish vision of a woman asking her husband to sign her permission slip to attend the field trip to the zoo.

OK, I'll fess up — I think beauty pageants are basically a joke, but this one is maybe worse than the rest because it hits you right in the wallet.

What bothers me the most is paying money to have someone tell you that you're cute. Who cares? Who are those judges anyway? Whatever happened to "Beauty is as beauty does" or "Beauty is in the eye of the beholder?"

Knowing those phrases might win you money on Wheel of Fortune, and ignoring them might cost you — both in money and self-esteem.

From the application — which also asks for your height and weight, your favorite article of clothing, your favorite food, your favorite vacation spot — to the judging, I looked for something that would show me this wasn't just another beauty contest reinforcing the belief that looks and youth are really the issue, regardless of what they lead you to believe.

But of course, I didn't find it.

A few questions on the application that seemed pertinent: Your career and educational accomplishments, your community involvement and volunteer work, your favorite charity, the person you most admire, your favorite saying and why you want to participate in the pageant.

But I soon realized that my answers didn't matter — as long as I was willing to fork over the dough.

Mrs. Carmel (no ties to the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea) is chosen on a first-come, first-serve basis until May, but will cost you $175.

This means you could probably fill in the application with purple crayon and say you most admire Barbie and still be accepted if you were the first one to turn it in and pay up.

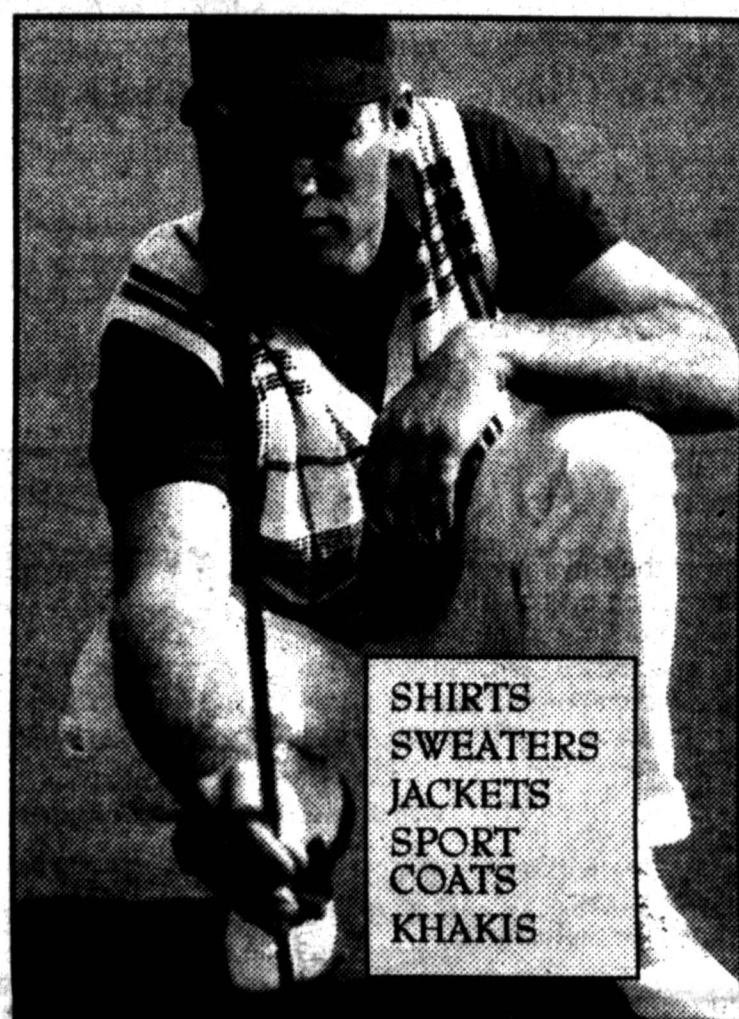

Once you receive the city title you may continue on to the next level; competition for Mrs. California means the 150-room hotel and a general store will not be allowed," said project lawyer Brian Finegan.

Monterey County Supervisor Sam Karas, who has another week remaining in his term, said the project is still alive.

"A lot of people thought they were killing the project with the defeat of M," Karas said. "They weren't."

Deeming the new version a result of "simply following directions" from the voters, Finegan said the only hurdle stopping development is a pending Sierra Club lawsuit challenging the project's environmental impact report.

The lawsuit, which protests what Sierra Club officials consider spread-out development in an area that calls for "clustering," is being heard in the Monterey County Superior Court by Judge Robert O'Farrell.

"If we (lose the case), I don't believe the partnership is prepared to go back to the entitlement process," Finegan said, referring to the universally favored approach of developing a unified plan for the entire ranch. "My sense is we would proceed with (selling) the lots of record."

Finegan said no more formal permission is needed to sell the ranch's already approved 125 lots.

Suggesting that Measure M foes have to give up something to get something in return, Finegan said developers went out of their way to set aside 18,000 acres of the ranch for a preserve when designing their original plan.

"The partnership had felt that just developing the lots would not do justice to the land," he said. "We will develop over the entire area if that's the will of the people. There will be no preserve with that alternative."

Both sides of the Measure M debate agreed that "piecemeal development" would preclude the establishment of a large open space and wildlife preserve.

Skeptical of the value of the preserve as it was proposed under the measure, members of the Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club have pursued their litigation with the anticipation that the partnership would try to develop the project despite the defeat of Measure M.

Don Gruber, vice chairman of the chapter, said the partnership claims to have a design that limits development to a 2,000-acre section of land while preserving the rest but is, in fact, planning "to develop all over the place" with homes that are more scattered than clustered.

"What they're doing is 'colandering' — developing the land to look like a colander where the holes, which are really big, represent the spaces in between (homes)," Gruber said, noting that the club is still vehemently opposed to the project despite the scaled-down plan.

"That's really bogus."

In reference to Finegan's claim that developers will sell off the lots of record, preserving even less land, Gruber said the developers were probably bluffing — as such an approach would be clearly against the wishes of the community.

International (Cost to you: an additional $575).

Once they're at the state level, contestants are judged in three categories: a private interview (50 percent), physical fitness (25 percent) and evening gown (25 percent).

I was curious about the physical fitness category since I'm no Jane Fonda.

I asked Noreen Edwards, Mrs. California International state director for Arizona and California, what exactly the physical fitness portion of the pageant entailed.

"It's to determine how physically fit you are," said Edwards. "There is a stage competition in aerobic wear."

Uh oh.

"What about someone like me who is completely uncoordinated and out of shape? Would they stand a chance?" I asked.

"Oh no, there's no dancing, the girls just walk down the center of the runway in their aerobic wear," said Edwards.

I decided to play dumb: "So they judge your physical fitness by how your body looks?"

"Yes."

Bingo!

In her defense, I have to say Edwards didn't make the rules for the contest and appears to have good intentions — she puts both candidates and winners to work serving in volunteer positions for nonprofit organizations throughout the year.

But having good intentions still doesn't diminish the fact that entering this pageant means paying to learn how to walk on a runway (a real useful skill) and paying for some strangers to ogle you and decide if you look good in a leotard. No thanks, there must be a better way to feel good about yourself.

LOSE 20 POUNDS IN TWO WEEKS

Famous U.S. Women's Alpine Ski Team Diet

During the non-snow off season the U.S. women's Alpine Ski Team members used the "Ski Team" diet to lose 20 pounds in two weeks. That's right - 20 pounds in 14 days! The basis of the diet is chemical food action and was devised by a famous Colorado physician especially for the U.S. Ski Team. Normal energy is maintained (very important!) while reducing. You keep "full" - no starvation - because the diet is designed that way. It's a diet that is easy to follow whether you work, travel or stay at home. (For men, too!)

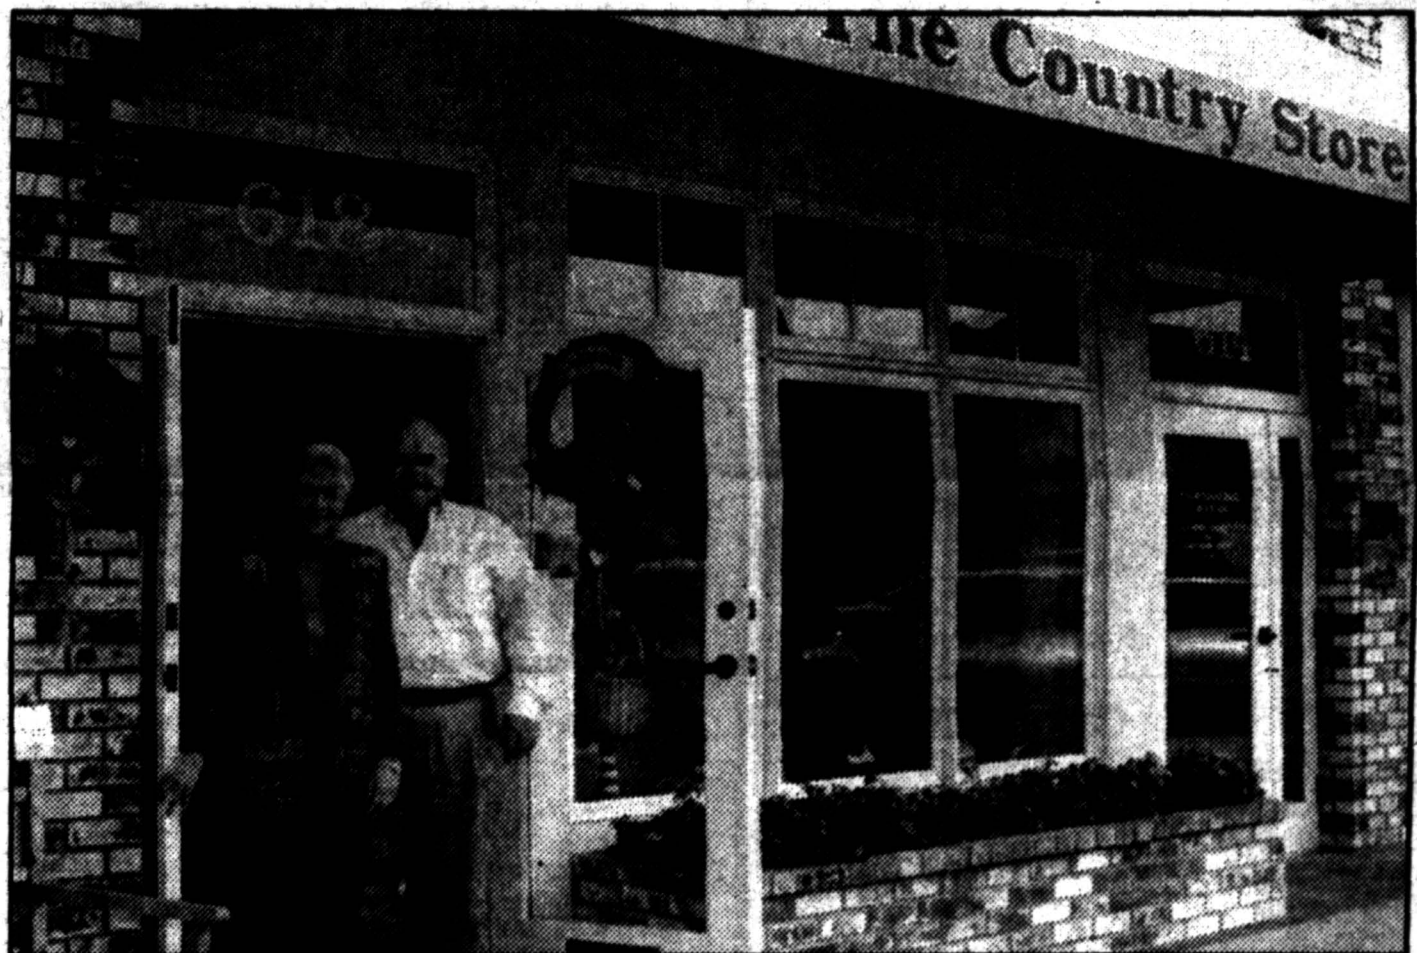

This is, honestly, a fantastically successful diet. If it weren't, the U.S. Women's Alpine Ski Team wouldn't be permitted to use it! Right? So, give yourself the same break the U.S. Ski Team gets. Lose weight the scientific, proven way. Even if you've tried all the other diets, you owe it to yourself to try the U.S. Women's Alpine Ski Team Diet. That is, if you really do want to lose 20 pounds in two weeks. Order today! Tear this out as a reminder.

Send only $8.95 ($9.60 in Calif.) - add .50 cents RUSH service to: American Institute, 630 Quintana Road, Suite #136, Morro Bay, CA 93442. Don't order unless you expect to lose 20 pounds in two weeks.

Because that's what the Ski Team diet will do.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Many grown children buying their first house have followed a common pattern of asking parents to put up the down payment. This trend has been increasing since 1990, according to a study by Dartmouth College and the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston. The study found that parents now account for down payments in 25 percent of home purchases, compared to 20 percent six years ago. Other researchers says this is part of a larger trend: Since 1960, the amount of wealth transferred by parents to adult children has tripled.

For 53 years, Rose Basile Green has started her started her day at 5 a.m. with poetry. By 8 a.m. she finishes another 14-line sonnet, her specialty, and reads it to her husband, Ray, over breakfast at their home in Lafayette Hill, Pennsylvania. Now 81, the former college English instructor has turned out 10 volumes of poetry. Shakespeare is her idol and his sonnet format is her model. Modern poetry? Much of it "has no form at all," she says.

night service as it wishes.

"This service has been syndicated successfully in several markets around the country, although there is no market for classical music anywhere like the one we have here in our area," Johnson told The Pine Cone.

Johnson sees syndication of FM classical as a healthy trend that can bring the music to new areas of the country. "We are going on this service because it will have the effect of providing us live announcers around the clock, which is what we wished to do from the very beginning. But that was something the KDFC format didn't permit and we couldn't afford."

Clearly, syndication is a cost-effective means of providing top-quality programming profitably.

Johnson pointed out that when he and McCullough acquired the station it had 22 employees. Over time, the crew was reduced to 10 while using the KDFC syndication.

Meanwhile, using SW Networks programming, the co-owners may be able to downsize further and still provide local programming for features, local news and morning traffic reports.

Concerning the changes the new program source might provide, Johnston said he expects that younger announcers and more accessible selections will draw more of the under-45 listenership.

Cross to bear

"One of the crosses classical music has to bear is the advanced age of its listening audience," Johnston said. "Radio time is sold in demographics of age. (Advertising agencies) are not interested in your programming, but the age of your audience."

Targeting classical music programming to younger audiences, according to Johnston, has already been successful in other places in the U.S.

He said complaints tend to run their course in the initial weeks, but listeners get used to the new format and the reasons for it.

McCullough hinted at how the mix of music might change. "Suppose you have a young person, say 25 years old, listening and you have a real 'purist' classical piece on. He is probably not going to want to stay tuned to that. If you have something more of a lighter fare that sounds pretty, he will probably want to keep listening."

She added, however: "This is not to say that it will only be light, bright, funny and happy music, for there will be a little bit of everything."

In other areas where stations have subscribed to the SW Networks Classical FM service, they have increased their ratings, especially among younger listeners, McCullough said.

"We are very lucky to have such a loyal audience, and although we want to keep their loyalty, we also want to expand our audience," she said.

The Peninsula musical community views the changes with some skepticism.

"We are very disappointed, and doubtful about what lies ahead," said Bea Tomlinson, a member of the board of the Chamber Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula.

Keith Anderson, president of the Carmel Music Society, agreed, posing the question: "How much lighter will the new programming be? We will be more than a little upset if it gets extremely light."

Meanwhile, Susan Koza, director of marketing and development of the Monterey County Symphony, believes it is premature to pass judgment on the changes at KBOQ until the new programming is heard.

Still, she and others say they will miss David Wittrock's morning program, "Baroque & Eggs," which has provided live programming over the past 15 years. Another popular show being discontinued will be Lisa Ledi's Thursday evening opera program.

Said Koza: "Anytime a radio station's programming becomes less live, in the sense that it is no longer broadcast from your own neighborhood, it becomes less familiar and less like an old friend."

The best and worst of the '96 sporting scene

By SCOTT A. BROWN

■ Most sincere moments of '96: Michael Jordan's tears ... A pulsating Yankee group hug following the dramatic, come-from-behind World Series win over Atlanta ... The elation of the victorious U.S. women's soccer team in the Summer Olympics ... Swimmer Angel Martino giving her gold medal to a sick girl she had met only two days earlier.

■ Best example of the modern-day athlete: 49er running back William Floyd, just two days after his arrest for drunken driving, turned in a most unforgettable performance against Houston. Floyd finished the game pouting on the bench, while his teammates staged a winning rally behind third-string quarterback Jeff Brohm.

■ Best individual game: Louisiana State comes from behind to win the College World Series on a two-out home run in the bottom of the ninth by a player who hadn't parked one all season.

■ Best series: After losing the first game to Canada in the hockey World Cup, Brett Hull scores seven goals and Mike Richter stops 65 shots over the next two games to win the "Canada Cup" for the U.S.

■ Best individual performances (national variety): A reeling Pete Sampras fighting off exhaustion and illness to beat Richard Krajicek in the U.S. Open ... Michael Johnson beating Frankie Fredericks in the 200 meters in Atlanta ... Giacomo Leone, out of nowhere, winning the New York Marathon.

■ Best coaching performances (local variety): Tu'u Seva'aetasi, Monterey High coach, leading her girls varsity volleyball, basketball and softball teams to Central Coast Section playoff berths ... Mike Kelly guiding the Carmel High boys varsity baseball team to a 15-1 victory over Monterey in the CCS Division II championship game at San Jose Municipal Stadium.

■ Football coaching carousel: Don't blame the Raiders' season on Jeff Hostetler, who did a remarkable job considering he spent the year running for cover ... The blame starts with Mike White, who on the sidelines in the waning moments of the season finale with Seattle looked like a guy about to be fired. Two days later — Christmas Eve, to be exact — Al Davis pulled the trigger ... Why he made it eight years: Wayne Fontes could sell a ketchup popsicle to a woman in white gloves.

'Shoeless Tim' shines

■ A Giant mess: You win with starting pitching, period. The Giants adding J.T. Snow, Jeff Kent and Jose Vizcaino (not to mention subtracting Matt Williams) is like putting a new coat of paint on Candlestick Park. A dog is a dog is a ...

■ Match not made in heaven: Roger Clemens opting for the Toronto Blue Jays was the lesser of two evils. The greatest Red Sox pitcher of all time playing for the Yankees would have been like witnessing Juan Marichal in a Los Angeles Dodgers' uniform. (Tell me that was just a bad dream.)

■ Great for baseball (local variety): Carmel versus Monterey in the CCS title game. Too bad it was over before it began.

■ Bad for baseball (national variety): The Yankees winning the World Series. With Gooden, Rogers, O'Neill, Martinez, Boggs and Raines (any of whom would be the best player for Pittsburgh or Montreal) on the bench, who'd you think should win? A reluctant case for a salary cap or revenue sharing.

■ Role models everywhere: The women's American Basketball League, where the players have college degrees and are entrepreneurs as well as pioneers.

■ Order on the court: Alonzo Mourning is sitting out three games because his two-year-old daughter head-faked him into an armoire during a game of Nerf Hoops on Christmas Day ... It would be nice if the Warriors came out ahead on a deal once this decade. Then again, it's comforting to have the Dallas Mavericks around. Jason Kidd for who? ... What's irking me is that Jud "And his hair is perfect!" Buechler has a pair of championship rings.

■ Holier than thou: As uncomfortable as it makes me, I'd rather hear Brett Butler and Jim Harbaugh talk about God than Darryl Strawberry and Michael Irvin, who declare with chests puffed out like bantam roosters they've found the Almighty only after they've painted themselves into irrevocable spiritual corners.

■ Redundant: Union members with agents.

■ Best athlete in pro sports: Steffi Graf.

■ Good for us: Monterey High's quarterback / point guard / center fielder J.J. Sherrill. With legs crazier than Elroy Hirsch, Sherrill, just a junior, will continue to keep the MHS sports scene in the Northern California media spotlight.

Enjoy full Life Care retirement living in Pacific Grove.

For retired college professor George Rommel, travel has been a life-long passion. He's circumnavigated the globe four times.

But for all the places he's been and things he's seen, nothing measures up to the quality of life he enjoys on the Monterey Peninsula.

George lived for 14 years in a house he designed in Carmel. When he began to look at his retirement living options, he didn't have to look very far.

At Canterbury Woods, he found a community of active individuals like himself who appreciate carefree, independent living in one of the most beautiful places on earth.

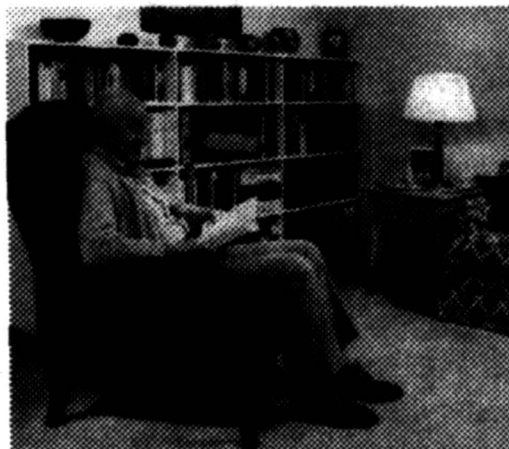

George enjoys the privacy of his own apartment, the companionship of friends both old and new, and the peace of mind that comes with the guarantee of comprehensive lifetime medical care.

If you would like to know more about the many benefits of full Life

Care retirement living at Canterbury Woods, call us today at (408) 373-3111 or (800) 211-5558.

Letters should not exceed 350 words and are subject to editing. Letters must be typed and include name, address, telephone number and signature. Those that have previously appeared in other publications will be given last priority.

A heartfelt 'thank you' to those who saved my life

Dear Editor:

I want to publicly thank the volunteers and the personnel of Carmel Valley Fire Department and the medics from Mid-Valley Fire Department for the outstanding job they did on Oct. 19.

It wasn't just a little thing, you see they saved my life. In a life threatening situation, they were calm, kind, respectful and very professional, even at 3 a.m.

The E.R. staff was very complimentary as to the timely manner in which these true angels of mercy did their job.

I cannot thank all who helped enough and I'm sorry I can't mention the names of these fine folks but there were so many, and I was kinda foggy.

My prayers are with them, always.

Evelyn Robertson, Carmel Valley

Vote yes on March POWR initiative ballot

Dear Editor:

If the citizens'-based POWR (Protect Our Water Resources) initiative (Measure A) is approved by the voters on March 4, one of its more important provisions would require that the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District obtain voter approval before any permits, licenses or other authorizations, etc., are transferred to Cal-Am for the proposed New Los Padres Dam.

Some of those opposed to Measure A fear the vote of the people and would prefer a "back door deal" without voter approval.

Please vote YES on Measure A if you wish to continue to have a voice in the decision-making process to solve our water problem.

Gary Tate, Carmel Valley

A YEAR-END REFLECTION

■ The world's influence on us, and each individual's influence on the world, are always in delicate and mysterious balance

By JOAN DRUMMOND MILLER

READERS, I wonder if your mind works like mine.

When I sit down to write a end-of-the-year reflection commenting on the events of the last 12 months, I feel torn between talking about my personal life — the trip to Napa and new bookcases in the living room — or commenting on Clinton's reelection with a Republican Congress or other events.

First Person

I wonder which is really the most significant to my life: costly dental surgery or the year's research in genetics — or maybe the impact of the nation's second-year obsession with O.J.

While individual German families were contemplating whether to plant potatoes or onions in their gardens that winter of 1937, Hitler was sewing the seeds of the Third Reich. Everything is so related.

In moment-by-moment living, it appears you are making a number of insignificant decisions without many consequences. Yet in the end, all those small choices constitute your life. Minute-by-minute, hour-by-hour, you have forged it. Finally you become the sum total of all these decisions.

Meanwhile, on a completely different plane, events are taking place which help shape your life, events of which you are usually unaware.

Trends and paradigms

The small decisions we all make collectively become large decisions we call the trends and paradigms of our time. When we look back at a time in history, like the Depression, it's always clear that people were living within all kinds of limits, boundaries, myths, belief systems that made them appear similar.

But they weren't. Some saw differently. Some saw uniquely. They were called madmen or prophets, geniuses or fools. Sometimes they were not called anything at all because they kept their disagreements with the culture to themselves and remained unknown. Nevertheless, the unconscious agreements people struck with their culture made up a good portion of their lives, and their disagreements were very significant, especially what they did about them.

However, in most of our lives (at least in a good portion of my life, I know), we can go for weeks or months without thinking about this aspect at all, deluded that we are just making decisions about when to take the car in for a lube job or whether to see the new Tom Hanks' movie.

We give little thought to how we are part of the collective world and that the collective world is to some degree a reflection of us. We are not realizing how the economy of Mexico has a bearing on our budget for groceries this week. Our interconnections are mysteriously invisible to us during most of our lives.

Only occasionally, like that rare moment when some trick of sunlight reveals a spider web I had not seen in the garden, do I grasp the beautiful web of connections that is our time.

And though it is large, inclusive, complex, it is simultaneously fragile because it is passing second-by-second, and every small wind of change affects its shape and pattern. It holds us all delicately swaying in the breeze of history while we maintain our individual illusions that we are unaffected and that our moment-to-moment decisions are inconsequential.

I cannot remain aware of all this constantly as it would result, perhaps, in a paralyzing self-consciousness, but it is good to pause now and then to observe all the wheels within wheels turning with masterly precision, never missing a single revolution. I guess this is what medieval scholars proclaimed when they sounded the maxim, "God's in his heaven. All's right with the world."

In Jerusalem almost 2,000 years ago housewives bartered over crocks of grain and exchanged gossip, unaware that a Jewish woman in the occupied land was giving birth to the child who would evermore divide time into the before and after of his life.

Joan Drummond Miller is a Carmel author, filmmaker and teacher as well as a contributing writer to The Pine Cone.

Pine Cone to publish special year-end section

THE CARMEL Pine Cone traditionally has published an extensive "year-in-review" issue on the last week of the year. Our plans are somewhat different this time around. To provide a comprehensive look at 1996, we will publish a special year-end section, to be included along with our regular edition next week, Jan. 9. Look for this pull-out section, which will include the first installment spotlighting an ongoing distinction: Carmel Pine Cone/Monterey Times Person of the Year.

YEAR: Some of the best, worst

■ With every loss, he gained dignity: Seaside High head football coach Al Avila, who showed class as he and his players endured a 0-10 season.

■ Great kid, bad circumstances: Stevenson's Sean Jackson, recruited by Todd Bozeman to Cal's troubled basketball program. Then again, Ben Braun may just help everything turn out OK.

■ Best match you didn't see: Santa Catalina's

Lisa Walgenbach and Catherine Hawley battling it out at practice to determine who was ranked No. 1 on the Cougars' juggernaut girls' varsity tennis team.

■ Most overlooked accomplishment (by this writer): Carmel High's boys and girls cross country teams qualifying for the state meet with hardly a mention.

■ Just when you become cynical... "Shoeless" Tim Peiffer of the CHS boys' cross country squad, lost a shoe at the one-mile mark in the state meet. So how did he react? Merely by running the remaining two miles with one shoe on, one shoe off over wet, rough and hilly terrain. (See photo, page 14.) He enjoyed the best race of his young career, finishing third among his Padre teammates. That, William Floyd, is what athletics is all about.

Happy New Year!

'97 will see birth of two festivals at Fairgrounds

TWO NEW music festivals will debut at the Monterey Fairgrounds in 1997. The Monterey Rock and Art Festival is scheduled for the weekend of May 10-11 and a World Music Festival is planned for the weekend of June 7-8. Add this pair to an already impressive lineup of yearly local music events that includes the Monterey Jazz Festival (Sept. 19-21 will mark this year's 40th annual); the 12th Annual Monterey Bay Blues Festival (June 20-22); the 17th Annual Dixieland Monterey Festival (March 7-9), Laguna Seca Days (Memorial Day weekend); and the Third Annual Monterey Bay ReggaeFest (Sept. 6-7). Keep posted for updated booking info on all of the above festivals and keep an eye out for the two newcomers.

Originally dubbed Monterey Pop '97 (in recognition of the 30th anniversary of the original Monterey Pop), the non-profit's board of directors recently met and decided to change the name of this rock 'n' roll event to the Monterey Rock and Art Festival. Spearheaded by three spirits promoter Susan Collins-Mallory, the promoters intend to showcase a wide array of "alternative rock" bands (for lack of a better word) from San Francisco, Los Angeles and beyond. According to Susan, more than 40 bands have requested slots on the bill, 20 of them signed to major record deals. Although none of these bands are what you would call major headliners (most of them qualifying as emerging talents), Susan and staff are working diligently on booking three major acts. Two shows will take place on Saturday, May 10 and one show is scheduled for Sunday the 11th. Bands will perform in the Main Arena and on secondary stages. Ground passes will be available.

No official announcements have been released concerning the upcoming World Music Festival but the entire Monterey Fairgrounds has been reserved for the weekend of June 7-8, 1997 by a group of promoters sponsored by the Monterey County Cultural Council. Although it is too early to start announcing scheduled acts, promoter Barbara Murphy has been busy booking a wide array of talent for what will be Monterey's first world music festival. Music and dance performances will take place in the Main Arena and a number of side stages.

Alligator Live in Monterey

Born on the Bayou of Southwestern Louisiana, Alligator moved to the Monterey Peninsula in 1989 and the talented and versatile musician has called Monterey home ever since. The son of a French/African father and a Spanish/Indian mother, Alligator grew up immersed in the culture of Creole music. As a child he toured Europe with the New Orleans Olive Branch Gospel Choir and he has been performing throughout the world ever since. His music reflects his diverse and colorful Creole mixture and his latest CD release, Live in Monterey, showcases his feel for a wide array of music including rock 'n' roll, blues, reggae, ska, and of course Cajun and zydeco for which he has received wide recognition. Alligator plays a myriad of styles; the common denominator in his music is his Creole heritage.

CHANTICLEER ENCHANTS LISTENERS WITH PROGRAM OF RESONANT SONG

HEARING CHANTICLEER, that incomparable a cappella male vocal ensemble of world-wide reputation based in San Francisco, is always a satisfying musical event. Don't expect the members of Chanticleer to enter in Santa hats humming "White Christmas" and exit singing "Rudolf the Red Nose Reindeer." This is a group that has an impressive dignity. That is not to say that they are stuffy and pompous, but that they avoid trite clichés and present us with music that is sometimes challenging, sometimes humorous, but always on the highest artistic level.

By LYN BRONSON

The group opened the evening's concert with its customary entrance procession bearing candles and solemnly intoning sacred processional music from the Middle Ages. In the darkened Carmel Mission Basilica this has the effect of stripping away the centuries and transporting us on a magical journey backwards in time. Listening to the quality of the individual voices and how they blended in such perfect balance was an extraordinary musical experience. This concert marked the end of Chanticleer's series of Christmas concerts, and the precise, skillful vocal ensemble exhibited by the group showed the seasoning that comes from many years of successful music making.

Although two of the works on the program were repeats from last year's Christmas program (John Tavener's "Village Wedding" and Franz Biebl's "Ave Maria"), it was a privilege and a pleasure to hear both these works again. "Village Wedding" represented a United States premiere for Chanticleer in its 1995 season, and this year it sounded even more polished and moving than it did the previous year. There is a haunting quality about this score that makes a powerful cumulative effect, and the vocal ensemble was pure and clean with precise intonation and impeccable diction.

Biebl's setting of "Ave Maria" is another of the gems of the sacred a cappella contemporary literature, and it received a lovely performance that was rich in detail with lovely clarity and expressive dynamics. The beautifully resonant bass voice of Eric Altorre provided a constant solidity to the harmonic texture — always there as a firm foundation, but never overwhelming the ensemble.

One of the most interesting works on the program was "Riu, riu, chfu," a 16th-century anonymous work that was full of energetic, dance-like rhythms and complex choral textures that made a powerful effect. Another lovely work was a song by Gustav Holst, "In the Bleak Midwinter," arranged by Joseph Jennings and Leslie Woodgate that created an enchanting mood.

On the traditional side Chanticleer had a few surprises for us. "Away in a Manger" arranged by Lowell M. Durham and "Tomorrow Shall Be My Dancing Day" arranged by Dale Grotenhuis were in enchanting settings that made a beautiful effect. From a composer we hear too little of, Gustav Holst, came a hauntingly evocative "In the Bleak Midwinter," arranged by Joseph Jennings.

To end the program, Chanticleer presented us with a series of spirituals arranged by Joseph Jennings that were the hit of the evening. At the end of the first song, "Glory to the Newborn King," we heard a chorus repeatedly transposed up a half-step at a time to delicious effect. In "The Virgin Mary Had One Son" we heard again the awesome bass voice of Eric Altorre (I wasn't seated close enough to Mr. Altorre to observe his waxed handlebar mustache, but in his picture in the printed program it was an elaborate affair reminiscent of Salvador Dali). The program ended with "Jesus, Oh What a Wonderful Child" which with its "old time religion" rhythms and snapping of fingers brought a storm of applause at its conclusion.

That 12 singers can achieve so much sonority and so much tonal variety has to be heard to be believed. When they come again in the spring, don't miss them!

On the Cover...

Carmel artist and writer Belle Yang will present a slide lecture and sign copies of her books at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the Monterey Museum of Art at La Mirada. Yang is the author of "The Odyssey of a Manchurian," the second of a trilogy, published by Harcourt Brace. Several paintings from Yang's first book, "Baba: A Return to China Upon My Father's Shoulders," based on her father's youth in war-torn China, will be included in the exhibit. Information: 372-5477.

Recorded live at Doc's Nightclub, Live in Monterey is one of many albums recently recorded by Doc's house soundman Larry Viales. The CD features Alligator on guitar, accordion and vocals; Floyd Walker on keyboards; Mike Firstman on drums; and special guest John Popper on harmonica. Alligator and his Bayou Boogie Band have a distinctive style and sound and the trio can either crank it up or play it nice and slow as revealed in the gentle cut "Living Stars." The group performs at El Nido's on Friday, Jan. 3; Monterey Billiards on Saturday, Jan. 4; and at TGI Friday's on Wednesday, Jan. 8. Although Alligator states that he has no intentions of moving from the area (all you gator-heads can breathe easier) the colorful musician who earned his name as a child from his instinctive ability to hunt down reptiles, will be taking off on a tour of Australia in February. Catch him locally while you can.

New kid in town

As always, new bands are forming (usually arising from the ashes of other broken dreams). Expect to hear more this year from Dirty Water (a new country group featuring vocalist Kate Wells); The Notion (an original rock 'n' roll band comprised of former members of Blind Curve and Plug); The Players Club (a tight rhythm and blues band from Seaside); the Blue Tornados (a power trio specializing in rock 'n' blues and featuring the guitar wizardry of Kevin Conley); the Crusin' Deuces (yet another new local blues band); and Mockingbird (a rock 'n' roll band featuring Steven and Mary Kay Kramer recently transplanted from Los Angeles).

One of the best new bands to spring up in Monterey last year, Mockingbird rose from the ashes of Killer Mockingbird, an L.A. band that was signed to a major publishing deal. Burnt out on the Los Angeles club scene, the Kramers visited Monterey on their honeymoon and decided to make a permanent move. Although Steve and Mary Kay have been in the area for over a year and a half they only recently played their first local gig at Monterey Billiards. Explains Steve, "I've been laying low ... after feeling out the scene I decided to finally put a band together." The group's CD reveals a keen knack for hooks and melodies and a maturity that comes from playing for over 20 years in the competitive L.A. music scene. The former rhythm guitarist for Virgin (a handpicked group signed by Warner/Curb in the 1980s), Kramer became disillusioned by the record industry and he is now just looking forward to playing some gigs in the laid back atmosphere of Central and Northern California. Explaining his move to Monterey, "It was quite obvious to me that local club owners, bookers and radio personalities in the Monterey area are into supporting live music, and helping to break new, original artists onto the local scene."

Stephen L. Vagnini is a self-described music activist who resides in Marina. For more than 15 years Vagnini has promoted concerts, managed bands and covered the local music beat. His Backstage column appeared in Coast Weekly newspaper for more than five years.

The Social Year in Review

Santa's 1996 work

Bye, Santa:

I wish I could fly like you! I recall a saying written on a stone at one of the craft shows that your elves put on this year.

Your elves? Oh, yeah, they're here all year working and preparing for your entrance.

Social Spotlight

By Dodie Barkley

Anyway, the sign read: "Angels can fly because they take themselves lightly." That's how you fly, isn't it? You're lightness itself, aren't you?

Do you think that if I start to realize that I'm on a huge ball out in the universe, and that nothing is more amazing or incredible than that, and that no problem, no matter how difficult, can even compare to that, I might become as light as you and fly?

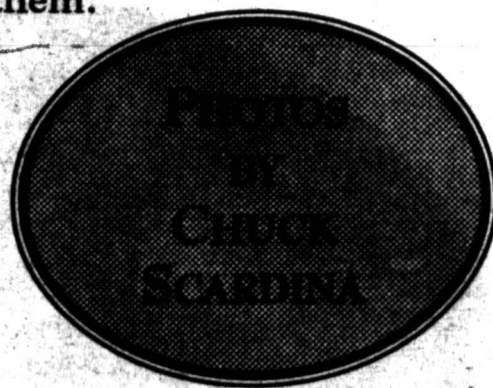

I'll work on that in 1997.

I'd like you to know before you go that I tried to cover all the events that your elves were involved in, but I couldn't get to all of them.

It's no one's fault, it just happens that way.

So then, let me remember some of the women's clubs, religious organizations, charities, balls, fund-raising activities and other festivities by using photos of your dear elves.

Fly home, and as you circle this wonderful and crazy world, look back at us just once and smile, OK? Take care. Regards to Mrs. Claus. See ya.

Just,
Dodie

SOCIAL EVENTS

Cannery Row's first Frog Jump in October had participants portraying novelists John Steinbeck and Mark Twain. The two frogs were real. Only the authors were actors.

Dame de la Chaine Artie Early and her husband Lee at the Confrerie de la Chaine des Rotisseurs gala presented in December at The Inn at Spanish Bay.

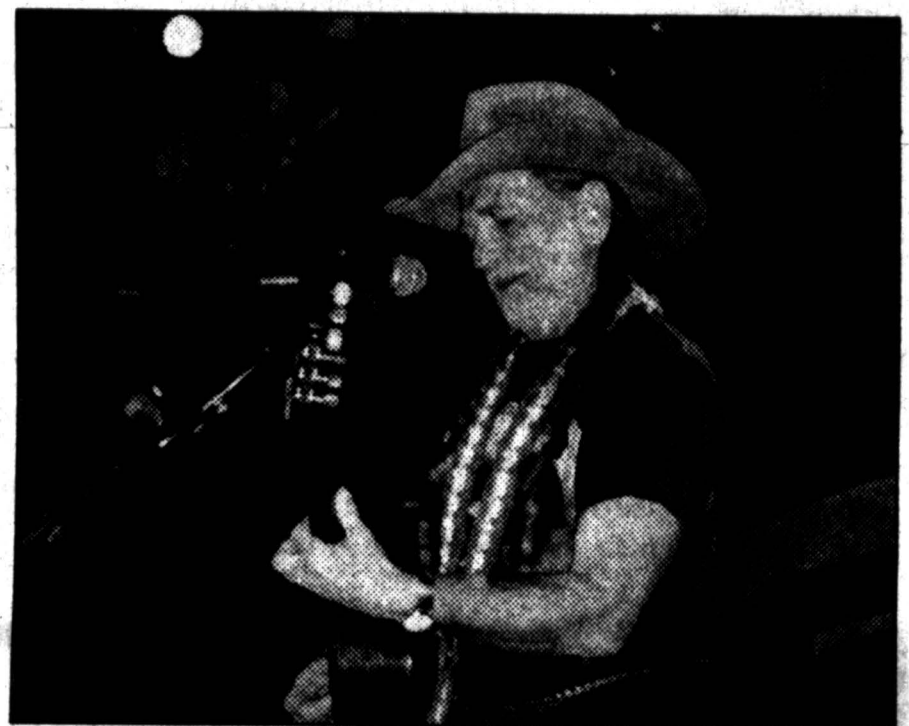

Singer Glen Campbell bested everyone in the AT&T Celebrity Shootout at Pebble Beach last February. His opponents were actor Kevin Costner and comedian Bill Murray.

Willie Nelson was the star performer at the Lifesavers for Youth benefit staged in December in Monterey.

Going wild over wildflowers

You would be surprised how they flourish at home

HOW MANY of us have ever been dazzled by the beauty of a hillside or meadow in bloom with its splendid array of colors?

It is magnificent when nature is at work. Not only does it command our admiration, but these works of art rejuvenate each year to display a similar scene for our enjoyment.

In our area, these scenes of natural beauty start their yearly displays with the coming of the seasonal rains. It all begins with a cycle of seed germination and growth, and climaxes with the stunning display of color. Then, to ensure the artful displays will be carried on yet another year, they reproduce seeds before expiring.

Garden Variety

By Thomas Mickler

Actually, just the opposite is true. With a little knowledge and experimenting with various types of wildflowers, you, too, can have an out-of-the-ordinary display within the view of a window, deck or patio.

Let's cover the basics.

■ Soil requirements: You don't need exceptionally good soil or areas with irrigation, just soil that is not hardpan. You may need to turn over the topsoil to get this result.

Also, you don't want to plant wildflowers where you have had weed problems

See WILDFLOWERS page 11B

They are wildflowers — and while we marvel at their beauty, we find that we have not allowed this natural display to enter our landscaped areas. We may feel that "wild" means uncontrollable or unmanageable, that these do not fit in our neatly maintained yards.

Green with envy

Beautiful gardens are but one of the key features of our 'House of the Week.' For more details, please see page 12B.

'Stampede to the Internet has been overwhelming'

TWO YEARS AGO at a press conference in Miami Beach at a gathering of the National Association of Realtors, incoming NAR president Robert H. Elrod was asked whether he thought putting home listings up on an online service or the Internet was a likely trend.

California Trends

By Bradley Inman

At the time, he said he wasn't sure the public could "handle it (accessing the data)" and that his members enjoy an "element of control" with the current MLS system that Realtors aren't too eager to give up.

His prediction reflected the thinking at the time, but certainly not the direction of where things have headed in the last year.

For real estate, the most profound impact of the information highway is the speed and pace with which the nation's home listings have been put up on the World Wide Web. In just a few short months, one million homes or more are now posted on the Internet.

It is estimated that in California alone 90 percent of all resale home listings handled by an agent are now on the Web. Just one year ago, it was less than 1 percent.

The "stampede to the Internet has been overwhelming," said Gregg Larson, a partner in Clareity Consulting of Minneapolis, Minn.

Loosening the bear hug

Despite real estate's general reputation for being slow to embrace technology, the listings-on-the-Web phenomenon has pushed it further ahead of many other industries and could permanently change the real estate industry by loosening the bear hug it has around information.

So, how did it happen?

Theoretically, adept consumers, breakthroughs in technology and the power of the Web explain the trend. But a more exacting explanation uncovers several factors including leadership, competition, egos, fate and economics.

Technologists were the first to see the opportunity.

CES Home Buyer Internet Real Estate out of Annapolis, Md., purports to be one of the first U.S. companies to put a collection of home listings up on the Internet. On Nov. 4, 1994, 10 homes-for-sale from Annapolis, Md. were put on the Web. The listings were those of Prudential realty agent Becky McGettigan.

Bradley Inman, whose syndicated column appears weekly in The Carmel Pine Cone and Monterey Times, has an Internet home page at <http://www.inman.com>.

According to Kevin McLaughlin of CES, the first company globally was GEM, a South African firm that put the first listing up on Nov. 1, 1994.

California sets trend

The movement to put the entire MLS up seemed to first catch hold in California where Joel Singer, California Association of Realtors; Richard Janssen at InfoTouch, San Diego; Russ Bergeron of the Southern California MLS; and the Northern California division of Coldwell Banker's vice president Larry Knapp pushed their various organizations to get home listings up on the Web, and fast.

Singer, an economist by training, has argued for more than two years that the Realtor role in the real estate transaction could be quickly eroded if leadership on technology is not taken by Realtors, brokers and their trade groups. He also was aided by CAR technologist Jeff Johns, who peddled the marketing theme with reluctant Realtors.

One of the first to go online was the Orange County MLS, which was trumpeted by local tech and realty expert Bergeron, who serves as Southern California MLS's general manager. This data now resides on Homeseekers, which was also an early pioneer on the Web and is owned by NDS Software, Minden, Nev.

Janssen was arguably the most influential force in getting the sprawling National Association of Realtors to push for putting listings up on the Web. A businessman and entrepreneur, the San Diego technologist has much riding on the success of NAR's

Web site, Realtor.com, where he provides the listing service and search engine for the site.

Knapp of Coldwell Banker saw the opportunity for real estate relocation and for giving his listings greater exposure. More than a year ago, he bragged about leads generated from online services.

A horde of local and state associations have followed the lead of these early adopters as the process of offering the MLS on the Web becomes complete in the next several months.

unless you don't mind if they grow together, such as in a field area. (Note: Wildflower seedlings look just like weeds, so be sure not to kill them by mistake.)

■ Caretaking: Minimal maintenance doesn't mean "carefree." There is a little work involved, such as weed control, baiting for snails and slugs, doing so at the time of seeding, and cutting back the finished bloomers. If you would like to see your wildflowers grow the following season, then allow them to produce and distribute seed before removing.

■ Enjoy: Take note of the colors and how well certain flowers do in comparison to others, and ones that you particularly like. This will give you an idea of what to plant later.

Wildflowers are many and varied in color, plant growth and height. You can buy mixes that have plants that only reach a certain height, and mixes for multiple size and colors, or you can buy a certain kind of seed.

Do you like California poppies (Eschscholzia californica)? Here's how to have them all over your yard from just a little seed:

— First, buy or collect some seed (remember, it is illegal to bother poppies in the wild unless on private property) and sow where you would like them.

— Once they are growing, after the flower has died, allow the seed head to form. It will look like a tiny okra pod.

— When the seed head starts to turn brown, carefully remove it and put it in a paper bag until the seed head dries out and bursts open. Now you have seed for next year, and one plant by itself can produce a lot of seed.

Here are some wildflowers that tolerate poor soil and moisture, listed by heights:

■ Over four feet: Giant evening primrose, yellow flowers. (Oenothera hookeri) Penstemon, many and varied in size and color. Contact seed broker for availability.

■ Between two to four feet: Tickseed, yellow to orange flowers depending on variety. (Coreopsis), Woolly Daisy, ground cover, gold flowers, gray-green foliage (Eriophyllum), Alpine Sunflower, white flowers to more than four inches (Hymenoxys grandiflora) Desert Bells, pale blue to blue, some varieties with white mixed in. (Phacelia) California Fuchsia, red tube-like flowers, blooms in clusters (Zauschneria)

■ Under two feet: Wild hyacinth, grass like flower spikes, blue. (Dichelostemma pulchellum) Wild buckwheat, small and short with yellow flowers (Eriogonum)

Zinnia, yellow flowers with gold centers, sow after frosts. (Z. grandiflora) African Daisy, ground cover with purple and white flowers (Dimorphotheca).

There are also many types of grasses that look good as well. Contact a wildflower seed broker for questions or mixes. One supplier that has mixes with flowers of similar heights is Snow Seed Co. (758-9869).

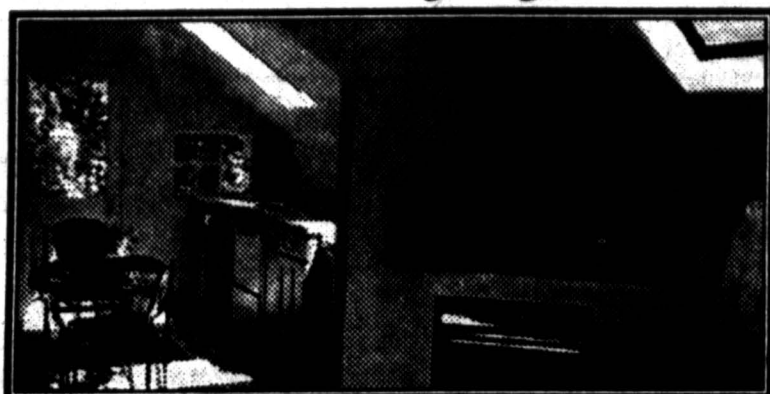

And as the proverb goes, "You reap what you sow," so Happy Planting!

Rare Finds on the Peninsula

Central Coast Computers

Located behind the blue awning on Dolores between Seventh and Eighth in Carmel, Central Coast Computers supplies solutions to the computer needs of small business, corporate accounts and individuals.

Central Coast Computers supplies sales and leasing of IBM compatibles, plus a service-dedicated staff to back up this hardware. It's also the source for everything from software to ink cartridges, toner, diskettes, paper and computer parts.

The local company can custom build computer systems for home or office. Low cost, on-site technical and training support are also available.

Curious about the internet? Step in to the store and investigate the always open information superhighway. A real human being is present to answer your questions.

Central Coast Computers is open 9 to 6 Monday through Saturday, with after-hour and Sunday appointments available. Call 626-6885.

Parrots

Parrots owner Barbara

Anderson uses her imagination to make this Crossroads clothing specialty store a fun place to shop. Here you'll encounter the courtyard of an early California mission, complete with distressed wooden floors, wicker furniture, palm trees and dressing rooms with little tile roofs.

All this is a fitting backdrop to the highly wearable, fashion conscious cotton separates that populate her store. Parrots brims with clothing that is easy care and fun to wear. Most of the selections are pure cotton; all are top quality.

Barbara believes that women can feel comfortable even when they dress attractively. Many of the styles shown at Parrots are cut oversized and unstructured, but there are body conscious designs as well.

Experience the fun place to choose clothes: Parrots, at 113 Crossroads Blvd., Carmel. Call 626-1836.

Prim & Proper

Prim & Proper

Discover classic clothes and accessories that suit the Monterey Peninsula lifestyle at Prim and Proper. Dea Moore reopened the downtown Pacific Grove boutique last July. It is stocked with leading labels in missy's sizes 6 to 18 and petite sizes 4 to 16.

Look to Prim and Proper for fashions by Philippe Marquez, J'Envie, Austin Reed, Sigrid Olsen, Eagles Eye, Gotcha Covered, Susan Bristol and Willi of California, just to name a few. This is just the place to find those comfortable all-cotton turtlenecks and mock turtles by Eagles Eye, as well as dickeres.

The shop is awash in accessories, including the Vera Bradley line of purses, tote bags and accessories, scarves by Echo and several lines of jewelry.

Located at Lighthouse and Grand, Prim and Proper is open every day. Call 372-5563.

Suzuki Jewelers

R.S. Suzuki Jewelers was founded by Ray Suzuki, who still oversees the family business and repairs watches at the Alvarado Street store.

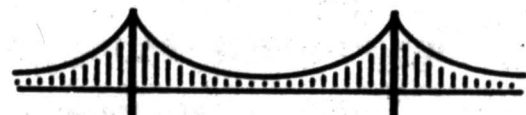

The philosophy here is service-oriented and prideful. The staff will go out of its way to see that you are satisfied with your purchase. Custom designs can be made to your specifications, and the store can also remount your older or damaged jewelry.

At R.S. Suzuki Jewelers, you'll discover watches by Seiko, Universal Geneve and Carrera y Carrera. There are Chatham Emeralds, made up in rings and pendants, and an exclusive line of jewelry from Spain.

R.S. Suzuki Jewelers is at 482 Alvarado St., Suite 1, in downtown Monterey. Hours are 9:30 to 5 Monday through Friday. Call 655-1348.
